Dear Colleague,

Argentina — which is ready to set a Guinness World Record for having the world's longest quarantine — has finally started to ease its restrictions a bit.

After almost 150 days stuck at home in Buenos Aires, can you guess the first thing I did to celebrate this new "era of freedom?" I went to the hairdresser, of course. And believe me, it did wonders for my humor and attitude!

While Argentina's international borders are still closed, I'm pleased to report that some Latin American countries — like Costa Rica, Ecuador and Mexico — have reopened their borders and are starting to welcome tourists again.

Hopefully, in the September edition of our newsletter, we'll be able to add even more countries to this list as our beloved tourism industry gets reborn.

As mentioned in our previous edition, we're working really hard on putting together an Emerging Destinations virtual roadshow. Get ready for more information over the upcoming weeks.

In the meantime, don't forget to check out our website and register for upcoming webinars as well as visiting our YouTube channel. And feel free to listen to past webinars that you didn't have the opportunity to attend live.

Stay safe and keep dreaming!
