A Reflection from your Buddhist Chaplain

Dear Jumbo Community,

This week the Buddhist community celebrates Buddha's Enlightenment, the day that he broke through his inner struggle and realized that he and all other beings were not separate. Buddha's last instructions, his gift and charge to us, is: be a light into yourself.

Buddha advised us to trust our own capability to awaken; our calling to be a light, to reflect the original light of true nature so that it is manifest in our everyday activities. Once Bishop Desmond Tutu was asked, "How is it that South Africa avoided a race war?" Bishop Tutu replied, "There are tens of thousands of people who were God-carriers." In other words, carriers of the light.

In this way, we are the great awakening; we are the gathering light; we are the coming dawn. Whatever light we carry is already affecting countless others. Social change occurs at the root of grass-roots. Peace is coming, step by step; one breath, one moment at a time.

Our celebration of Enlightenment Day will take place today, December 7, at 7:30 p.m. in the Interfaith Center. We are honored to welcome Vietnamese monk Thich Chánh Trí to provide encouragement for our meditation through his talk on the Buddha's awakening. This is a day of festivity, traditionally accompanied by mangoes, persimmons, rice cakes and spirited chanting. Please join us!

And the University Chaplaincy's annual winter concert Pax et Lux (peace and light) takes place this Thursday, December 8 at 7 p.m. You are most welcome to come and explore the themes of peace and light.

With best wishes and metta,

Ji Hyang Padma
Buddhist Chaplain

MLK Student Voices Award

Submissions due Wednesday, January 18 at 11:59 p.m. ET Interested undergraduates and graduate students are invited to submit creative responses for this year's Student Voices Award as part of the annual Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Celebration coordinated by the Africana Center, Tisch College of Civic Life, and the University Chaplaincy. We ask submissions to respond to the quote below and answer the question, "What does love and creativity look like for you in the service of action for love and justice?" We invite submissions of essays, poems, spoken word, songs, art, or performances - to be considered and join the January 30 celebration.

The 2023 guiding quote is from King's book The Trumpet of Conscience, and reads: "But we do not have much time. The revolutionary spirit is already world-wide. If the anger of the peoples of the world at the injustices of things is to be channeled into a revolution of love and creativity, we must begin now to work, urgently, with all peoples to shape a new world."

This year's theme, "We Don't Have Much Time:" Raising Consciousness and Building the Future

Now, comes from the quote, and will inform the university-wide event. You can find information about the Award, the submission process, and more here. A small committee including members of the planning team for the Celebration will choose up to three winners. The winners will be chosen based on organization, clarity, creativity, originality, and relationship to the 2023 theme. There will be a cash prize for each winner, and one of the winners will be invited to present at the Celebration on Monday, January 30, 2023. The submissions will be displayed on the Africana Center and University Chaplaincy website, with permission of the creator.
