Happy New Year! We are hoping that 2021 will see us return to some version of pre-pandemic normalcy. Despite the pandemic, however, we continue to share archaeology and anthropology through classes and collections. Read more about learning opportunities at the Peabody and ongoing collections research in this issue of our newsletter, along with some interesting artifacts of cold climates. And, don’t forget to sign up for Diggin’ In and the monthly meetings of the Massachusetts Archaeological Society!

On the Cover
Happy New Year! We are hoping that you are as joyful this January as our students and colleagues are in preparing to teach this summer. Despite the pandemic, however, we continue to share archaeology and anthropology through classes and collections. While we have not had an opportunity to host the Peabody in person for a while, we have found that whether we are in person or online, the Peabody is always there to serve and enrich our community. Hang in there! If you can’t enjoy Diggin’ In at the moment, remember the Museum at Loomis House is open free to the public.
