

Quarantine Edition Video for New Song, 'Credit!' WATCH NOW!

April 29th, 2020

I was sitting on the back patio talking to my mom. We were a week into quarantine. I was writing feverishly! So much time, so much inspiration. Then it hit me. Let's produce a whole song using my live band and a few other session musician friends and create a home video of our humble-means setups, i.e. recording vocals in my closet! LOL Let's defy confinement with creation!

Right after I started the project, I lost one of my best friends at just 24 years old to Covid-19, Ben Hirschmann. The devastation kicked me in the gut, and I had to put a pause on everything. Meanwhile, my awesome band, my producer and my manager worked behind the scenes without me even knowing to continue the recording process. They believed in the song.

A few days ago, I received a final mix from Mills of 'Credit.' My friend, Natalie, edited the footage we took before Ben's passing, and I uploaded it onto Facebook, Instagram, Twitter, YouTube, EVERYWHERE, last night.

When I clicked post this morning, I knew I was releasing more than another song, more than another video, more than a quarantine session, more than a visual put to music. I was releasing a message that is far more powerful than I ever imagined. A message I've learned from so many wonderful souls in my life--my mom, my dad, my sweet Hallie (if you know you know), my aunts, uncles, cousins, best friends, Herschel, Terena, Tess and her family, and most of all, my dear old friend, Ben Hirschmann.

As you watch the video, I hope you're enveloped by the joy that oozes out of the melody and instruments. And while that happens, I hope your heart downloads the lyrics. And when it does, I hope you just can't help but smile and dance.

I miss you guys! I can't wait until we can see each other at another show. Smile and dance, and think of my friend Ben!

SHARE, LIKE, COMMENT! Tell me if you're dancing. <3

XOXO, Paulina
