Seeking new volunteer member(s) for the Clinical Supervision Connection Podcast Team

Hello everyone!

The CSC Podcast is looking for new volunteer member(s) to join our podcast team. The Clinical Supervision Connection Podcast is designed to engage the clinical supervision community in cross-disciplinary dialogues and collaboration. By hosting voices across geographical and disciplinary contexts, this reciprocal community of researchers and practitioners will have the opportunity to learn from one another and translate knowledge to shared understandings.

We welcome new ideas and perspectives. Feel free to give some of our previous episodes a listen! <https://csrcollaborative.org/podcast/>

Expectations:

New volunteer member(s) would be expected to meet once every two weeks via Zoom, be active in the clinical supervision community, and attend interviews with podcast guests.

People who are bilingual/multilingual, have experience with audio editing, grant application experience, and in fields outside of psychology (nursing, social care, etc.) are encouraged to reach out. Students are also welcome to reach out.

If you are interested in joining our fun international team, please tell us a little about yourself through email at CSCConnectionPodcast@gmail.com

We are looking forward to meeting you!

Share your recent clinical supervision research publications!

We love featuring recent clinical supervision research studies authored by CSRC members in the newsletter!

CSRC members are invited to share their recent publications of empirical work for upcoming newsletters!

Just email a brief blurb (no more than 150 words) of the study, along with a copy of the article, to DiAnne at borders@uncg.edu. In the blurb, please summarize the goal and main findings of the study and state clear and specific implications for supervision researchers, practitioners, and/or educators. Finally, include the article DOI and indicate whether the full article is available to CSRC members through ResearchGate, open access, or another source.

Note. By submitting your article to share in the newsletters, you are also agreeing for your write-up to be shared on our CSRC social media accounts. English summaries of non-English research publications are welcome!
