Applications are open through June 15 for the Neurodiversity graduate trainee program now accepting applications of the institution's historical commitment to seeking justice, will step Emilie Townes to conclude deanship of Vanderbilt.

In keynote remarks delivered at an investiture officially marking his tenure as Vanderbilt's ninth chancellor, Daniel Diermeier urged the

Dear Vanderbilt community,

AAPI Heritage Month

Thankfully, with the coming advent of Vanderbilt's Asian American Studies program, we'll need less of our imaginations to fill these silences and know just as Grace Lee Boggs reminded us to deepen our democracy in times of

The month of May is Asian American Pacific Islander (AAPI) Heritage Month.

I watch these Asian American and Pacific Islander (AAPI) histories, but of the unnamed Chinese railroad workers who press so many of us into agreeable ahistorical citizens. Assimilation and erasure sterilized our heritages' unique gifts and concealed these contributions

Increasingly taking pride and continued education in AAPI heritage and the impact and enduring histories of colonialism and cultural amnesia that had

In the arts and sciences, no longer assuming a white, Western gaze to be our default, but to see and seek the contributions of voices from the Global South, from Latin America, and the United States.

This is the moment we can begin to build the types of libraries, classes, and academic programs and the infrastructure to support them.

The staff at Vanderbilt have been pushing for racial justice and equality through nonviolent movements and nonviolent social change

I hope you'll join me in this moment to see this as our opportunity to continue to do our work to bring to all of Vanderbilt a sense of where we are today and what we can

Thank you for your continued support of our staff, faculty, students, and Vanderbilt.
