TOWN GUIDES

Those stalwarts among us are beginning their third week of resolutions, while the rest of us are likely already making the kind of personal bargains that look like this: "What's ONE cookie in the scope of things? I deserve it". That would be me, by the way. But I'm trying this thing called Tiny Habits, which encourages you to set teeny weeny goals. And there's an accountability bit if you choose to go there: a coach that you email to say if you've managed to stick it out for the day. Of course, part of me is a big girl who thinks she should be able to carry out a few resolutions all by herself. But I gotta say, the coach is not a bad idea. If you're interested, the book is Tiny Habits by BJ Fogg. Hope you're slogging through January as well as can be expected.

Seaside Periodontics, LLC Madison

Periodontal Therapy does not need to be scary. Many people are unaware Gum Disease is usually painless until tooth loss approaches. 85% of patients have some Periodontal Disease, and only 40% are aware that they have this condition! Additionally, Periodontal Disease is conclusively linked to Heart Disease, Diabetes, Osteoporosis, and, more recently, Alzheimer's. Get screened (no referral necessary), choose to be healthy!

Dr. Nicole Marquis has been in Periodontics and Implant Dentistry private practice for over 20 years in Madison, CT. A 1995 (DMD) and 1998 (Periodontics) graduate of University of PA, she served as President of her post-doctoral residency program. Her patients enjoy her enthusiasm, individualized treatment plans and dedication to their care and maintenance, often spanning 2 decades. She also derives great joy from raising her 10-year-old son, Eric.
