 dear community:

how are you? it's been almost exactly two years since covid-19 was declared a global pandemic, and so much in the world has changed. in santa clara county, where our office is located, the indoor mask mandate has ended, and we are feeling the effects of a warmer spring. it is a new time and a new season. despite the challenges of the pandemic, our work continues, and we are finding new ways to engage with our community.

we have a number of exciting opportunities to share with you. first, we are pleased to announce the launch of stanford community partnership awards! these awards provide seed funding for public-interest oriented leadership projects that would benefit underserved communities in california and around the world. the first set of awards is now open for eligible applicants, and we encourage you to learn more about this opportunity.

we also wanted to highlight two important dates:

- request for proposals released: february 22, 2022
- optional webinar for interested applicants: tuesday, march 15, at 12 noon in addition, we would like to congratulate patricia rodriguez espinosa on receiving the society of behavioral medicine's jessie kudos award! this award recognizes pivotal and impactful contributions to the field of behavioral medicine. we are honored to have patricia as a part of our community, and we are proud to see her hard work and dedication recognized.

finally, we wanted to remind you that our office is committed to fostering an inclusive and supportive environment for everyone. as always, we encourage you to contact us with any questions or concerns you may have. we are here to support you and help you succeed.

thank you for your continued support. we look forward to seeing you in person soon!

weiting.chen@stanford.edu stanford community partnership

welcome message | welcome | community engagement | community partner highlight | international education | research | events | funding opportunities | contact us

winter 2022 newsletter