TOWN GUIDES

Last week we rounded up some tips on how to stay healthy and save your sanity during the upcoming holiday frenzy (in case you missed it, you can find it at the bottom of this list). I'm throwing my hat in that ring this week, with my capsule wardrobe. I love a uniform and not having to overthink about what goes with what! We all know the 80/20 rule (80% of our clothes hang forlornly in our closet, while we regularly trot out just 20%). I'm probably more 90/10 during any given season, but I buy judiciously and wear my clothes to death. I've included my go-to's here. Daylight Savings Time and the move indoors has given rise to a spate of organizing and a tiny bit of redecorating, and I've added a few things to my wishlist. You'll find those on this list, too. And finally, it was a treat to see the Nut Museum recreated at Connecticut College. Read all about it, and a slew of other upcoming events on this list.

Indoor Refresh

Daylight savings time signals a move indoors, and I'm always up for a refresh this time of year. Sometimes I just push around the furniture and add a few new pillows and that does the trick. Here are a few items that have recently caught my eye...

Revisiting the Nut Museum:

Visionary Art of Elizabeth Tashjian

When we first moved to Old Lyme, there was an intriguing museum just down the street from our house devoted to the nut. Many of you probably remember the museum and it's elderly curator/owner Elizabeth Tashjian (often referred to as the Nut Lady, to her alarm)...

My Capsule Wardrobe

The handy thing about being a grown-up is you generally are no longer testing out your personal style. You know what works for your body type and probably wear a version of the same outfit most days. I definitely do...

Let The Marketplace Make Your Thanksgiving Meal Memorable!

Thanksgiving is such a wonderful holiday to gather with family and friends. With turkey and all the sides as the focal point, it can be stressful if you have to cook and prepare. The Marketplace is here to help you have a great meal and not be overwhelmed.

Their butchers can help you select the perfect size fresh turkey. They can even brine your turkey. They can also cook it ahead so you just need to reheat it!

Their Chefs can provide sides and accompaniments with that homemade taste without the fuss and the messy kitchen. They have gravy, stuffing, mashed potatoes, green beans, and Brussels sprouts. They offer soups, shrimp cocktail, and cheese platters for appetizers and pies for dessert. Vegan and Gluten-Free options are always available. Orders accepted through Sunday, November 24th.
