WORKFORCE DEVELOPMENT NEEDS

Department of Homeland Security (DHS) leaders have emphasized that the COVID-19 pandemic has caused disruptions and challenges in a number of areas, including the security and criminal justice sectors. The pandemic has impacted the economy, security, and transnational criminal organizations in ways that require new approaches and strategies. This article discusses the impact of COVID-19 on the economy, security, and transnational criminal organizations, and outlines potential strategies for addressing these challenges.

DHS S&T Communicator Receives American Security Today Award

George Mason University's Institute of Justice and Emergency Management (IJOEM) has announced that its Director-General, Jeffrey Hardy, has been named as a winner of the 2021 American Security Today (AST) Award for Excellence in Communications. The award recognizes excellence in communications and public relations, and is presented annually by AST to honor individuals who have made significant contributions to the security industry.

Distinguished Speaker Series

The Distinguished Speaker Series is a series of events that feature experts and leaders in the fields of security and defense. The series is designed to provide insights and perspectives on the latest developments and trends in the industry, and to promote learning and networking opportunities for professionals.

COVID-19: How the Pandemic Impacts Global Illicit Trade (Virtual)

COVID-19 has had a significant impact on the global illicit trade. The pandemic has disrupted supply chains, reduced international travel, and caused economic uncertainty, all of which have contributed to changes in the nature and extent of illicit trade.
