

Welcome back

Hello Lakers and welcome to the Fall 2023 semester,

As you chart your courses for the upcoming semester I would like to offer my support through the resources found on the gvsu.edu/community webpages.

I would also extend an invitation to anyone who would like to talk individually or collectively as a department or unit about any and all community engagement ventures, ideas or plans.

Resources like The Laker Effect Map and the Community Service Directory provide a chance to learn more about who engages and how we serve our community. The Community Based Learning Course designation offers an opportunity to officially designate class(es) as CBL. The CBL designation allows students to recognize these unique opportunities as they are registering for classes while having the experience noted on their official transcripts upon successful course completion.

I hope all of you are off to a great start to the Fall semester, please see the amazing opportunities below to learn and engage with.

Cheers!

Travus Burton

Director for Civic Learning and Community Engagement

Power is central to the concept of citizenship, yet Americans feel increasingly powerless in the face of a dysfunctional political system, diminishing economic opportunities, and countless cultural and social challenges. The belief that the civic power of everyday Americans has been stolen or suppressed by political and economic elites has gained traction on both sides of the aisle. The Hauenstein Center welcomes civic evangelist and Citizen University CEO Eric Liu and acclaimed historian and author Dr. Victor Davis Hanson for a bipartisan discussion about the barriers to empowered citizenship and what we must do to overcome them.
