February 2020

Winter Events

Deep Dive: Behind the Scenes – Reflections on Cinematic Criticism

Join us for an in-depth discussion of a panel at the recently concluded Digital Humanities Summer Institute (DHSI), which took place at the University of Victoria in Canada. Session One ran from June 1-5, and Session Two ran from June 6-10.

Read on for news from the DLA about what we're up to this year and how we can help you.

Digital Pedagogy Lab – 8th Annual Winter Events

The 8th annual Humanities Intensive Learning and Teaching (HILT) Institute will take place at Middlebury College. The Institute focuses on offerings from the Arts and Humanities, with a particular emphasis on the digital humanities. Researchers, students, early career scholars and cultural heritage professionals who seek to learn more about Digital Humanities theory, practice, and culture. This year's course offerings include, among others, "Teaching DH: Assignment, Syllabi, Curricula"; "Latinx Digital Praxis: Community Engagement and Innovation"; "From the Archive to the Digital: Digital Scholarship and Access to Medieval Manuscripts"; and "Introduction to Web Development and Design".

Digital Pedagogy Lab offers a 5-day course on topics like digital scholarship in a time of precarity; data, code, and ethics; introduction to open pedagogy; community-based digital projects; and leadership. Digital Pedagogy Lab is offering to cover funding for applicants who are interested in leading and teaching these types of courses. Attend the workshop from February 24-28, 2020.

The DLA is pleased to co-sponsor this event, which is hosted by the IGS Program at Middlebury College. To learn more about Sara Wylie, Assistant Professor of Digital Humanities in the Department of English at the University of Michigan, visit her website.

Deadline to apply is February 17. Lunch will be provided. Click here for more information on the types of courses that have been offered in previous years and how to apply.

Fellow, Sarah Payne, prior to submitting applications. To learn more about Sara Payne, please visit her website.

French Grammar Games for Grammar Geeks

French Grammar Games is an online grammar practice game for learning French. The game is web-based, and it offers three main game sets: Sentence Whiz, Word Nerd, and Verb Challenge. The site also includes a tutorial section where you can learn more about the grammar rules being taught. Dr. Burrows is a professor of French at Middlebury College, and she has created this game to help French language learners practice their grammar skills.

The game includes detailed explanations of grammar rules. Dr. Burrows wrote a fellowship led to the creation of a second, more public facing website: French Grammar Games for Grammar Geeks. The site includes a main game set: Sentence Whiz, Word Nerd, and Verb Challenge. The site also includes a tutorial section where you can learn more about the grammar rules being taught. Dr. Burrows is a professor of French at Middlebury College, and she has created this game to help French language learners practice their grammar skills.

The site has over 200,000 users and includes over 100,000 exercises. The game allows learners to practice their grammar skills in a fun and engaging way. The game also includes detailed explanations of grammar rules, which can be found in the tutorial section.

Digital Pedagogy Lab

The Digital Pedagogy Lab offers a 5-day course on topics like digital scholarship in a time of precarity; data, code, and ethics; introduction to open pedagogy; community-based digital projects; and leadership. Digital Pedagogy Lab is offering to cover funding for applicants who are interested in leading and teaching these types of courses. Attend the workshop from February 24-28, 2020.

The DLA is pleased to co-sponsor this event, which is hosted by the IGS Program at Middlebury College. To learn more about Sara Wylie, Assistant Professor of Digital Humanities in the Department of English at the University of Michigan, visit her website.

Deadline to apply is February 17. Lunch will be provided. Click here for more information on the types of courses that have been offered in previous years and how to apply.

Fellow, Sarah Payne, prior to submitting applications. To learn more about Sara Payne, please visit her website.

French Grammar Games is an online grammar practice game for learning French. The game is web-based, and it offers three main game sets: Sentence Whiz, Word Nerd, and Verb Challenge. The site also includes a tutorial section where you can learn more about the grammar rules being taught. Dr. Burrows is a professor of French at Middlebury College, and she has created this game to help French language learners practice their grammar skills.

The game includes detailed explanations of grammar rules. Dr. Burrows wrote a fellowship led to the creation of a second, more public facing website: French Grammar Games for Grammar Geeks. The site includes a main game set: Sentence Whiz, Word Nerd, and Verb Challenge. The site also includes a tutorial section where you can learn more about the grammar rules being taught. Dr. Burrows is a professor of French at Middlebury College, and she has created this game to help French language learners practice their grammar skills.

The site has over 200,000 users and includes over 100,000 exercises. The game allows learners to practice their grammar skills in a fun and engaging way. The game also includes detailed explanations of grammar rules, which can be found in the tutorial section.

External Opportunities

Apply for Funding

External Opportunities

HILT 2020

Apply for funding to participate in the Humanities Intensive Learning and Teaching (HILT) Institute, which will take place at Middlebury College. The Institute focuses on offerings from the Arts and Humanities, with a particular emphasis on the digital humanities. Researchers, students, early career scholars and cultural heritage professionals who seek to learn more about Digital Humanities theory, practice, and culture. This year's course offerings include, among others, "Teaching DH: Assignment, Syllabi, Curricula"; "Latinx Digital Praxis: Community Engagement and Innovation"; "From the Archive to the Digital: Digital Scholarship and Access to Medieval Manuscripts"; and "Introduction to Web Development and Design".

Digital Pedagogy Lab offers a 5-day course on topics like digital scholarship in a time of precarity; data, code, and ethics; introduction to open pedagogy; community-based digital projects; and leadership. Digital Pedagogy Lab is offering to cover funding for applicants who are interested in leading and teaching these types of courses. Attend the workshop from February 24-28, 2020.

The DLA is pleased to co-sponsor this event, which is hosted by the IGS Program at Middlebury College. To learn more about Sara Wylie, Assistant Professor of Digital Humanities in the Department of English at the University of Michigan, visit her website.

Deadline to apply is February 17. Lunch will be provided. Click here for more information on the types of courses that have been offered in previous years and how to apply.

Fellow, Sarah Payne, prior to submitting applications. To learn more about Sara Payne, please visit her website.

French Grammar Games is an online grammar practice game for learning French. The game is web-based, and it offers three main game sets: Sentence Whiz, Word Nerd, and Verb Challenge. The site also includes a tutorial section where you can learn more about the grammar rules being taught. Dr. Burrows is a professor of French at Middlebury College, and she has created this game to help French language learners practice their grammar skills.

The game includes detailed explanations of grammar rules. Dr. Burrows wrote a fellowship led to the creation of a second, more public facing website: French Grammar Games for Grammar Geeks. The site includes a main game set: Sentence Whiz, Word Nerd, and Verb Challenge. The site also includes a tutorial section where you can learn more about the grammar rules being taught. Dr. Burrows is a professor of French at Middlebury College, and she has created this game to help French language learners practice their grammar skills.

The site has over 200,000 users and includes over 100,000 exercises. The game allows learners to practice their grammar skills in a fun and engaging way. The game also includes detailed explanations of grammar rules, which can be found in the tutorial section.

Digital Pedagogy Lab

The Digital Pedagogy Lab offers a 5-day course on topics like digital scholarship in a time of precarity; data, code, and ethics; introduction to open pedagogy; community-based digital projects; and leadership. Digital Pedagogy Lab is offering to cover funding for applicants who are interested in leading and teaching these types of courses. Attend the workshop from February 24-28, 2020.

The DLA is pleased to co-sponsor this event, which is hosted by the IGS Program at Middlebury College. To learn more about Sara Wylie, Assistant Professor of Digital Humanities in the Department of English at the University of Michigan, visit her website.

Deadline to apply is February 17. Lunch will be provided. Click here for more information on the types of courses that have been offered in previous years and how to apply.

Fellow, Sarah Payne, prior to submitting applications. To learn more about Sara Payne, please visit her website.

French Grammar Games is an online grammar practice game for learning French. The game is web-based, and it offers three main game sets: Sentence Whiz, Word Nerd, and Verb Challenge. The site also includes a tutorial section where you can learn more about the grammar rules being taught. Dr. Burrows is a professor of French at Middlebury College, and she has created this game to help French language learners practice their grammar skills.

The game includes detailed explanations of grammar rules. Dr. Burrows wrote a fellowship led to the creation of a second, more public facing website: French Grammar Games for Grammar Geeks. The site includes a main game set: Sentence Whiz, Word Nerd, and Verb Challenge. The site also includes a tutorial section where you can learn more about the grammar rules being taught. Dr. Burrows is a professor of French at Middlebury College, and she has created this game to help French language learners practice their grammar skills.

The site has over 200,000 users and includes over 100,000 exercises. The game allows learners to practice their grammar skills in a fun and engaging way. The game also includes detailed explanations of grammar rules, which can be found in the tutorial section.

External Opportunities

Apply for Funding

Digital Pedagogy Lab

The Digital Pedagogy Lab offers a 5-day course on topics like digital scholarship in a time of precarity; data, code, and ethics; introduction to open pedagogy; community-based digital projects; and leadership. Digital Pedagogy Lab is offering to cover funding for applicants who are interested in leading and teaching these types of courses. Attend the workshop from February 24-28, 2020.

The DLA is pleased to co-sponsor this event, which is hosted by the IGS Program at Middlebury College. To learn more about Sara Wylie, Assistant Professor of Digital Humanities in the Department of English at the University of Michigan, visit her website.

Deadline to apply is February 17. Lunch will be provided. Click here for more information on the types of courses that have been offered in previous years and how to apply.

Fellow, Sarah Payne, prior to submitting applications. To learn more about Sara Payne, please visit her website.

Digital Pedagogy Lab

The Digital Pedagogy Lab offers a 5-day course on topics like digital scholarship in a time of precarity; data, code, and ethics; introduction to open pedagogy; community-based digital projects; and leadership. Digital Pedagogy Lab is offering to cover funding for applicants who are interested in leading and teaching these types of courses. Attend the workshop from February 24-28, 2020.

The DLA is pleased to co-sponsor this event, which is hosted by the IGS Program at Middlebury College. To learn more about Sara Wylie, Assistant Professor of Digital Humanities in the Department of English at the University of Michigan, visit her website.

Deadline to apply is February 17. Lunch will be provided. Click here for more information on the types of courses that have been offered in previous years and how to apply.

Fellow, Sarah Payne, prior to submitting applications. To learn more about Sara Payne, please visit her website.