Clemson researchers work with citizen-scientists to better understand diversity of rattlesnake venom

The Mojave rattlesnakes that live in the deserts of southwestern United States and central Mexico are packed with lethal venom, though they rarely strike unless provoked. This research was published in Scientific Reports.

New lecture series promotes professional development to SCIENCE students

The College of Science is piloting a new seminar series in spring 2019 intended to equip SCIENCE undergraduate and graduate students with the professional development skills they will need to be competitive on the job market. The series will be held on Mondays from 5:30-6:30 p.m. in the Watt Center, room 106. Lectures are designed for students, but are also open to faculty and staff.

Workshop to focus on the rising field of Data Science

Learn from Clemson researchers how the tools of data science are being used to solve problems and make a difference in the world. This four-hour workshop at Watt Auditorium on April 18, 2019, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. is open to students, faculty, staff and the general public. For more information, please visit clemson.edu/data-science-workshop.

Perfect in every way

As Coach Dabo Swinney said, "We were not chasing the national championship, we were focused on being the best we could be every day." Chasing excellence brought glory to the Clemson Tigers.
