Welcome New IPPSters

Get Your Quote Today

Stay cool with recently acquired fans and portable ac units or buy all the tools and equipment you need to stay comfortable.

As part of the University of California's Carbon Neutrality response to this growing threat, we're examining and reducing our carbon footprint. The burning of fossil fuels has generally slowed car production. With travel picking up again, car shortages and rising prices will continue through 2021 and will be felt more deeply in popular destinations.

Navigating the rental car shortage

Did you know that employees can use Concur to book personal travel? It's true! Booking travel for business or pleasure in Concur means that you're taking advantage of all of the rates and perks that come with our UC-negotiated contracts. Travelers can save up to 22% on travel costs by using Concur.

Purchase Requisitions

UC San Diego has a fully-stocked PPE Store. Items can be purchased via Oracle Purchasing. Need PPE? Shop OFC!

Additional Resources

for important information and deadlines.

Important Dates

Now part of The Trove, the Mailing Center has moved from Campus Services Complex to 3515 Library Walk. On Wednesday, June 30, 2021, we will celebrate the official opening of the Mailing Center with a community celebration. Please join us for refreshments, tours, and to learn more about the Mailing Center and its services. The ceremony will begin at 10:30 a.m. in the Mailing Center and will move to the Trove after 11 a.m. for further details and guidance.

Mailing Center Moved to The Trove on June 7

Register for the event

Michael Keogh

After 28 years of distinguished service for his country in the Marines, Michael joined UC San Diego's Marine Science Institute as a lab technician. His involvement in the lab initially stemmed from his desire to work in the lab of his Ph.D. advisor. Michael's kind nature and willingness to help, not only assured hazmat regulations were met, but also helped secure the best rates for our lab. His attention to detail and commitment to the mission helped him rise to the top of his field. Michael's leadership style and his ability to innovate and build relationships while supporting our policies and procedures resulted in millions of dollars in cost savings for the University. The energy and enthusiasm Armando brings to his teams and to the IPPS culture will be missed after 28 years of distinguished service for his country in the Marines. However, we will always be able to call him a Marine, and we will miss his所带来的 dedication to the Marine Corps and our University.

Armando Chevez

When called upon to serve the university in any capacity, even when those challenges had nothing to do with the university, Armando was able to do what he does best in his new leadership role - step up to challenges and make a positive impact on the university. Armando joined Material Support Services (now Logistics) as a front-line support worker. A natural leader, Armando immediately stepped up and selflessly went beyond his role to help the university succeed. This included spearheading strategic objectives and change initiatives that will continue to have a positive impact on the university. When it comes to training, Armando always offers his best, and his team's success is evident. His approach to training has raised the bar for the university and created an environment where we can all learn and grow. As part of the Energy, Ecology, and Earth Sciences (EEES) team, Armando will continue to bring his leadership and training expertise to the university. He will also continue to support the university's sustainability initiatives, including the development and implementation of the university's carbon neutrality plan. As Armando approaches retirement, Bryan, you will be missed!

Ted Johnson

As our Social Responsibility & eProcurement Specialist, she'll have as our Social Responsibility & eProcurement Specialist. Welcome New IPPSters

Get Your Quote Today

Stay cool with recently acquired fans and portable ac units or buy all the tools and equipment you need to stay comfortable.

As part of the University of California's Carbon Neutrality response to this growing threat, we're examining and reducing our carbon footprint. The burning of fossil fuels has generally slowed car production. With travel picking up again, car shortages and rising prices will continue through 2021 and will be felt more deeply in popular destinations.

Navigating the rental car shortage

Did you know that employees can use Concur to book personal travel? It's true! Booking travel for business or pleasure in Concur means that you're taking advantage of all of the rates and perks that come with our UC-negotiated contracts. Travelers can save up to 22% on travel costs by using Concur.

Purchase Requisitions

UC San Diego has a fully-stocked PPE Store. Items can be purchased via Oracle Purchasing. Need PPE? Shop OFC!

Additional Resources

for important information and deadlines.

Important Dates

Now part of The Trove, the Mailing Center has moved from Campus Services Complex to 3515 Library Walk. On Wednesday, June 30, 2021, we will celebrate the official opening of the Mailing Center with a community celebration. Please join us for refreshments, tours, and to learn more about the Mailing Center and its services. The ceremony will begin at 10:30 a.m. in the Mailing Center and will move to the Trove after 11 a.m. for further details and guidance.

Mailing Center Moved to The Trove on June 7

Register for the event

Michael Keogh

After 28 years of distinguished service for his country in the Marines, Michael joined UC San Diego's Marine Science Institute as a lab technician. His involvement in the lab initially stemmed from his desire to work in the lab of his Ph.D. advisor. Michael's kind nature and willingness to help, not only assured hazmat regulations were met, but also helped secure the best rates for our lab. His attention to detail and commitment to the mission helped him rise to the top of his field. Michael's leadership style and his ability to innovate and build relationships while supporting our policies and procedures resulted in millions of dollars in cost savings for the University. The energy and enthusiasm Armando brings to his teams and to the IPPS culture will be missed after 28 years of distinguished service for his country in the Marines. However, we will always be able to call him a Marine, and we will miss his所带来的 dedication to the Marine Corps and our University.

Armando Chevez

When called upon to serve the university in any capacity, even when those challenges had nothing to do with the university, Armando was able to do what he does best in his new leadership role - step up to challenges and make a positive impact on the university. Armando joined Material Support Services (now Logistics) as a front-line support worker. A natural leader, Armando immediately stepped up and selflessly went beyond his role to help the university succeed. This included spearheading strategic objectives and change initiatives that will continue to have a positive impact on the university. His approach to training has raised the bar for the university and created an environment where we can all learn and grow. As Armando approaches retirement, Bryan, you will be missed!